

Woodworkers Journal

October 2002

Volume 26, Number 5

Page 100

“Reading Glasses” Move to the Shop

If you've passed the Baby Boomer milestone of needing bifocals, Wizard WoodSpecs are for you. They're safety glasses with built-in bifocal magnifiers. The WoodSpecs also have high-impact clear plastic lenses, an impact resistant frame and integrated side shields, to protect your eyes from flying debris. Once you adjust the temple pieces — which extend in four lengths — for comfort, you can clearly see your work without wearing an additional pair of reading glasses under your safety glasses.

“We believe this product will help make [safety glasses] a more convenient and helpful tool that people will want to use,” noted Billy Carmen,

Wizard chief executive officer. “It's a product that makes sense for the millions of woodworkers who also use reading glasses.”

WoodSpecs are available in the most commonly used magnifications (+1, +1.5, +2, +2.5 and +3) and do not interfere with normal long-distance vision. Retail price is $19.95.

For more information, call 888-346-3826 or visit www.ShopSpecs.com.

